

Righteous rest

When it's time to shuffle off this mortal coil, the question of what to do with the leftovers has changed drastically over the years with cremation not only gaining acceptance but winning prominence as land resources evaporate and funeral costs escalate. Bikers Urn is a creation from a German company and uses an actual Harley-Davidson Twin Cam aluminum cylinder as the final holding chamber for your beloved. The cylinder is black with polished fin edges and uses a hand-picked, sanded, oiled and polished American walnut base and a similar lid along with stainless hardware and NBR 70 O-ring seals to make certain the ol' man doesn't accidentally get scattered about the backyard during the next house party. Order processing time runs 4–6 weeks and the 1,850 euros price tag (approximately $2,029 US) includes shipping.

Peg board

Plenty of riders prefer the comfort of floorboards. The recently-developed Cruiser Pegs by BadJack Machine now allow even greater versatility and comfort for bikes equipped with Harley-Davidson rectangular, half-moon or swept wing-style footboards. Machined from aircraft-grade aluminum, these little gems grip the perimeter edge of your floorboard, providing a comfortable perch for your boot heel and allowing the rider the benefit of highway pegs even in the absence of an engine guard. (No drilling or modifications of any type to your OEM footboards are required.) Additionally, since the Cruiser Pegs can be located anywhere along the floorboard outer edge, riders of shorter stature can mount them closer, allowing for easy reach. A pair will cost you $75, which includes all mounting hardware.

Jiffy assist

Not all motorcycles (or riders) are created equal. And there's not anything much more frustrating than fumbling for a errant kickstand, especially as you pull into your favorite watering hole or while trying to park in the dark after a long day's ride. Drag Specialties hopes to ease that frustration a bit with the introduction of their new

Pannier expansion

Providing more statement than capacity, the new 4" Extended OEM-Style Saddlebags by Drag Specialties are available for 2014–'15 FLHT, FLHR, FLHX and FLTRX Harley models. Constructed from the same material as the stock bag, the bottom sections offer a 4" vertical extension that runs the length of the bag with sculpted cutouts that provide clearance for use with dual exhaust. They accept OEM or aftermarket lids and hardware and are designed for easy painting. Available in both left- and right-hand versions (natch), each side will run you $429.95.

Easy access

Keeping a passenger comfortable is a goal made a lot more convenient with Harley's new Backrest Organizer. Designed to fit over the operator's back support, the Organizer offers convenient storage with two zippered pockets and a mesh pouch with space for a water bottle, cell phone, keys, sun-screen and lip balm, all well within the passenger's access. Side laces make certain the unit stays in place while a seamless smooth vinyl face ensures operator comfort. Selling for $109.95, the Organizer fits 2009–later Touring and Trike models equipped with an H-D accessory rider backrest or the Signature Series Solo Seat.
